This is a fantastic opportunity for a very sociable, adaptable and energetic, business native German-speaking student to gain international experience with a dynamic health-focused food brand. As a DACH Sales & Marketing Intern, you will support the international sales team in expanding the brand's footprint across Germany and Austria. Working closely with the UK-based marketing and sales teams, your work will span market research, social media management, lead generation, and support with in-market promotional events. You will travel frequently throughout the UK, Germany and Austria and engage directly with the market at events and tasting sessions, gaining valuable hands-on experience and exposure to the brand's international operations. Do you have an interest in international business, marketing or consumer goods? Do you like to keep fit and healthy and want to explore the UK? Then this internship is for you! It will provide real-world insights and practical skills in a fast-paced, cross-cultural environment.

- Support social media and influencer activities for the DACH market
- Translate and adapt content for blogs and social posts, including recipes and campaigns
- Conduct competitor and market research e.g., pricing, wholesalers, gyms, retailers
- Maintain and update client databases and CRM records
- Assist with outreach to potential clients and partners
- Help organise and attend promotional events and tastings some travel required
- Support reporting on sales activity, client feedback, and market engagement
