1	Seminar on Economic Policy	L+E	7,5	4
2	Language of instruction English (except German gets unanimous vote)
3	Content of the Module The seminar covers economic issues that are currently a focus of debate in academia and in the public sphere. Students work on hands-on research questions in the fields of labor markets, industrial economics, and related areas. There will be opportunities to work empirically, theoretically, or to synthesize an existing body of research. Students are also given regular guidance by their advisor and have the opportunity to present their progress on various occasions.
4	Competences Students acquire analytical, empirical, and writing skills in applied microeconomics. They are acquainted with the research frontier and current debate in a policy-relevant area. The seminar also prepares students for the master's thesis, to which suitable topics may be extended.
5	Examinations Module examination, consisting of a graded written term paper and an oral presentation of the results.
